

Quantum Cloud Technologies (PTY) LTD Legal Disclaimer

For purposes of this Quantum Cloud Technologies (PTY) LTD Legal Disclaimer, “QCT” shall mean Quantum Cloud Technologies (PTY) LTD, and all of its subsidiaries.

Quantum Cloud Technologies (PTY) LTD only binds itself to third parties by means of formal written agreements, of which both the terms and conditions and the signatory thereto has been duly authorised by Quantum Cloud Technologies (PTY) LTD executive members.

Quantum Cloud Technologies (PTY) LTD therefore disclaims any and all liability of any form or nature in the event that the aforementioned had not been complied with. Third parties dealing with Quantum Cloud Technologies (PTY) LTD will accordingly not be able to rely on the “Estoppel” doctrine in cases of disputing authorised versus non-authorised agreements.

QCT conducts its business by means of formal written and signed agreements. The aforementioned is governed by our Delegation of Authority Policy, which dictates inter alia that formal agreements may only be signed by duly authorised individuals in accordance with a resolution issued by our executive members. The onus to prove authorisation of any transaction remains with the counter party. Any transaction, engagement or document signed outside of the aforementioned will be regarded as null and void and will accordingly not be enforceable. QCT rejects the common law principle of “estoppel”, and parties doing business with QCT will not be able to rely on the same.
